

To my fellow ministry leaders;

I'd like to take this opportunity to introduce myself and to share my career goals with you as an insurance agent and your partner in protecting your ministry and your place of worship.

I began my career in insurance in July of 1998. I started my agency with this goal in mind; to provide churches with the best protection available and offer personal and professional customer service. Having been raised in a minister's home, I understand the demands of ministry and the passion a pastor has when it comes to being faithful to God and feeding his flock. The last thing a pastor needs to worry about is the insurance of the ministry. I also understand the financial burdens many churches face and I strive to provide the highest of level of coverage while remaining sensitive to a church budget.

Some of the concerns that we are seeing in the insurance industry that our churches are facing today are as follows:

1. Churches need to protect their children from sexual claims. This includes childcare as well as injury caused by hazards in the building and on the property. Additionally, this protection covers inappropriate conduct by a volunteer or church employee. It's unfortunate that this coverage is necessary, but it is important that your church have this protection against any such claims.
2. Perils that put our buildings and contents at risk. The two most common that come to mind are fire and equipment malfunction.
3. Perils that put our proprietary and confidential information at risk such as hacking into computers to steal personal information.
4. Volunteers are a big issue in churches today with regards to insurance. How do you find the good ones that will stay faithful and motivated? We can offer you a workshop at our expense to train and educate the volunteers of your church.
5. We are seeing an increase in the number of lawsuits against churches these days. Churches are underinsured and are not carrying the coverage's they need. We see lawsuits against board members, deacons, pastors and most churches are not aware of coverage's that protect these leaders.

Whether you have a large ministry or a small ministry, you need an insurance partner that can advise you, protect you, and have the integrity and character you would expect from a friend and a colleague.

I will strive to give you the coverage you need, the service you deserve, with a premium you can afford. Please give us a call today to do an evaluation of your insurance needs.
